

eWeek -- May 27, 2013

By: Eric Lundquist

eWeek, a technology information source for builders of enterprise infrastructure, quoted Russell Reynolds Associates' Shawn Banerji in an article about the five new responsibilities for today's CIO. The article covered a panel discussion hosted by Shawn Banerji at the MIT Sloan CIO Symposium.

"You have to do all the old plus the new," said Shawn Banerji, managing director of Russell Reynolds Associates, in introducing the panel on the hallmarks of a successful CIO. Banerji's description was backed up by Michael Golz, the CIO of the America's for SAP, who noted that all the discussions about innovation stop when the email system goes down.

Read the complete article here.